Study apps are getting more and more popular. At first, students only used the apps to study. They could send messages(消息) and photos about their problems in homework and tests. But now, most of the users are using it like QQ to talk with friends or putting photos of themselves on it.

Many of these study apps already made some problems for students, parents and teachers. Teenagers are easily lost in games and other activities when they use these apps. So the apps are not helping their studies, but in fact, making things worse.

What's more, many study apps give students a way to copy(抄袭) answers. Wu Xiaoyu, an English teacher says that many students in her class just copy the answers from the apps. Only a few use the apps to study.

However, this isn't to say that we should stop study apps. They can help students if they use them in a right way. Students can solve their problems quickly and they can also become more interested in learning through the apps. Schools, teachers and parents should make rules to help students use the study apps better.

- () 71. Students used the study apps for _____ at first.

Memory(记忆) is very important. It helps you to remember who you are, where you live and what you learn. Some scientists say there are three kinds of memory: immediate, short-term and long-term.

Immediate memory lasts(持续) for less than one second(秒). Then people will forget the information easily.

Short-term memory lasts for about 30 seconds. You will only remember something long if it goes into long-term memory.

Long-term memory may last during a lifetime. It means this kind of memory is always there in your mind.

So, how can you improve your memory?

It is important to exercise your mind. For example, you can do something different. If you walk a different way to school or take a different bus, you will keep your mind clear. You can also try to remember something new. You can take up a new hobby or study a foreign language. Your mind will get lots of exercise if you do any of these things.

If you live a healthy life, your memory will work better. You should eat healthily. And you also need to get enough sleep every night.

If you want your mind to work well, you also need to relax. If you get too worried, your mind will work slowly, and your memory will become worse.

So, to improve your memory, you should exercise your mind, live a healthy life and relax yourself.

Memory
The importance of memory	Remember who you are, where you live and what you learn.
The kinds of memory	Immediate memory	It lasts for 6 .
	Short-term memory	It lasts for about 30 minutes.
	Long-term memory	It means this kind of memory is always there in your mind.

The 8 of improving memory	Exercise your mind	7 doing something different 7 remembering something new can help exercise your mind more.
	Live a healthy life	You should eat healthily. 9 you get enough sleep every night, you will not remember things well.
