I still remember that day. I was waiting to get some ___41___ for shopping in a bank.

Among the crowd, I noticed a little boy ___42___ some sunglasses in one hand and a big bag in other. The boy was about 10 years old. He was walking around the people inside the bank and asked them to buy his sunglasses. But ___43___ would buy any from him. He tried from one person to another. From the look on his face, I knew he would not ___44___ anyway.

Now, I decided to have a talk with him. I went up and asked, "Do you go to school?" He nodded (点) his head. Then I continued, "Why do you ___45___ sunglasses?" He said nothing. I gave him $20 and said that I was not in ___46___ of the sunglasses but he could keep the money. To my surprise, his face changed a lot, which is still in my memory today. I didn't know ___47___ to say next. Then he answered, "You buy sunglasses or you ___48___ back the money. I don't need your pity." I felt very ___49___ for what I did, and I told him that I would buy two pairs.

I took these sunglasses home and asked myself, "Did such a young boy need to do it for his self-respect (自尊)?" He could easily take the $20 and left. But he chose to sell his sunglasses and get the money not because of others' ___50___. I will remember this lesson forever.

Rita: This family moved to a new state. Their story is both funny and sad.

Evan: (Cheering up) Did they like the new place?

Marco: Not at first. But they made lots of new friends.

Mr. Cortez: What happened to make them change their minds?

Tom: The girl from next door said she needed help. When they got to her house a sign said "Welcome".

Marco: It was a surprise party for them. The whole family was laughing.

Mr. Cortez: The neighbors made the family feel welcome.

Mrs. Bordoni: (Stands in the doorway) Evan it's time for lunch. (They enter the lunchroom. A sign says Welcome Evan".) It is hard to change schools and leave old friends. Now we are your friends.

Evan: (Smiles) I can't believe you did this for me.

I have been very lucky to make many trips to China. Though I have had some trouble with the language, I have never had a problem I couldn’t solve. As a native English speaker, I can go almost everywhere in the world and find someone to communicate with. I never thought that someone who speaks only Chinese would have a lot of trouble in my country.

Recently, the King family that I had met in China moved to Canada. I met them at the airport. My wife and I made meals for them and showed them around where we live. Everything seemed to go smoothly for the first two days as we looked for a car for them, showed them the way to different stores and the nearest city, Victoria. Mr. and Mrs. King had a two-year-old son and soon we became Nainai (grandmother) and Yeye (grandfather). We were having a good time but we didn’t realize Mr. King can’t speak English.

Luckily, Mrs. King can speak very good English. Many people with Chinese background live near us. In fact, none of them speak Chinese. Mr. King can’t even buy a mobile phone without his wife’s help. He can’t talk to me, of course. By the third day, he felt lonely and worried. And on the fourth day, we decided to take them to a large Chinese community.

Now, we often visit them and they visit us too. Sometimes Mrs. King would still like to live near us but Mr. King cannot. I feel bad because he seems very nice and smart but I can’t talk with him. It seems that neither of us will learn the other’s language because of our ages, maybe we will never have a friendly conversation. But we will think of each other as friends.

56. The writer doesn’t have any trouble in travelling around the world possibly because _____.

A. he’s very lucky　　B. he speaks very good English

C. he’s good at speaking Chinese　　D. he is good at communicating with others

A. Sad　　B. Happy.　　C. Worried　　D. Lonely.

58. Who can’t speak English in this passage?

A. Mr. King　　B. Mrs. King　　C. The writer　　D. The writer’s wife

59. Which of the following is NOT mentioned in the passage?

A. How the King family came to Canada.

B. How old Mr. and Mrs. King’s son was.

C. Why the King family moved to Canada.

D. Why the writer feels bad when he is with Mr. King.

60. What can we infer (推断) from the passage?

A. Mr. King is not clever at all.

B. The writer has never been to China before.

C. Both the writer and Mr. King are quite young.

Sometimes, you feel down or unhappy and it is hard to come back to your high spirit (情绪). So if you're having a bad day and need a boost, then help is just a click (点击) away.

A website is trying to offer people positive messages from strangers to cheer them up. It is called "the nicest place on the Internet", where happy people can share their positive thoughts and feelings with those who are in low spirits.

The website, thenicestplaceontheinter.net, lets people post (发布) videos of themselves blowing kisses and leaving positive and encouraging (令人鼓舞的) messages to lift visitors' spirits.

The website was created by Jeff Lam and helped many people out when they feel low. The well-known artist who lives in San Francisco said he came up with the idea when he and his friend Lauren were having one of those bad days.

"We tried to become cheerful, but none of the usual ways seemed to be working. Not music. Not food. What we hoped was something positive, honest and good. So with only a camera and work-free weekend, we created 'The Nicest Place On the Internet,'" he wrote on his website.

One user of the site, Joseph Meehan, 27, from Birmingham, said, "it's a fun and exciting website. I visit it once in a while when I'm missing my friends or family. I think it could really be a help to people that are feeling down or sad. It may even stop them from doing something stupid. You can also post your video to the website, and they add it to the series. It's very easy to share the love."

Mr. Lam is now working on a new project that allows people to leave positive voicemails for strangers (陌生人). The idea is that strangers send an audio (声音) diary by leaving a voicemail and then anyone can listen to it. The new function (功能) will be in use next year.

61. What was Jeff Lam, the founder of the website?

A. offer something positive to cheer people up

B. post positive voicemails on the website to people

C. provide a place for those who want to post their videos

D. collect something positive, honest and good for artists

64. Which of the following can be posted to the website now?

A. pictures　　B. videos　　C. messages　　D. voicemails

65. According to Joseph Meehan, what kind of people cannot get help from the website?

A. People who feel down or sad.

B. People who miss their friends or family.

C. People who want to do something stupid.

D. People who want to improve their skills of making videos.
