Six-year-old girl Iris was born with autism (自闭症) . She doesn't like to talk or be with others and she often feels nervous. When Iris was three years old, her mother gave her some art lessons. There she found Iris's great talent for painting. From then on, Iris often spends her day painting.

However, Iris still felt lonely. Iris' parents learnt that animals were good for children with autism, so they introduced some animals to Iris. Before Thula, they introduced horses, dogs and other cats to Iris, but that didn't help. Until cat Thula arrived, they got along very well in just a few weeks. Iris often draws about the cat's eyes and nose in her paintings.

Iris's mother said, "When Iris is painting, she tells Thula to sit if she jumps up unto the table. Thula stays there watching Iris with great interest."

Iris and Thula are always together, eating, sleeping, playing... Iris's mother found that it was easier to make Iris speak with others when Thula was around. "Thanks to Thula, Iris found a way to show her feelings and communicate with the world. She is happier than ever before."

How to talk to someone you don't know? It depends on the situation (情形).

If one of your friends introduces you to a new friend, it would be OK to start talking about the person who introduces you. You may ask him/her how they knew each other. Show you are interested in it, even if you aren't. Nod after he/she talks. This will give you more time to listen to what he/she says, and think about next question from his/her talking.

Now if you go to a class on the first day where you do not know anyone, the first thing you should remember is not to be shy when talking to other people. You may remember when you were in the first or second grade, someone would just walk up to you and talk to you. Be open, but think before you talk.

When it comes to meeting people face to face for the first time, find a situation which both of you are in. Maybe you are sitting next to each other. Maybe the other person says something you don't understand. Find a situation that seems proper (恰当的). Start by a simple conversation. It may seem strange at first. But the more you talk and take action with them, the more they will like you.

(1) What does the underlined part "the person" refer to?

- A. A new friend.
 - B. The weather.
 - C. Yourself.
 - D. One of your friends.
- (2) Why do you need more time to listen according to the second paragraph?
- A. To know clearly what they say.
 - B. To find what they are interested in.
 - C. To think about next question.
 - D. To find funny things.
- (3) What does the third paragraph want to tell?
- A. Not to be shy when talking to strangers.
 - B. To attract people to talk to us.
 - C. To remember to greet others.
 - D. To find a good talk to start.
- (4) Which is a good situation to meet people face to face for the first time?
- A. Saying something you know.
 - B. Saying something you both know well.
 - C. Sitting next to each other.
 - D. Sitting face to face.
- (5) Which of the following is the best title?
- A. Some good ways to talk to strangers
 - B. How to make friends in you mew class
 - C. How to make a good impression on others
 - D. The different situations about talking with your friends
