九、文段表达 (15 分)

66. One possible version:

Hi! Helen,

I'm sorry to hear about your trouble. Don't worry. It's quite common for friends to misunderstand each other. I think there is nothing wrong for you to prepare for the competition, but you made a mistake when you lied to Judy. So you should tell her the truth first. Explain to her how important the speech competition was to you. Of course, you must say sorry to her for your dishonesty.

In my opinion, true friends should be honest and understanding to each other. I hope you can be good friends again.

Yours,

Lily

听力录音材料:

1. M: Betty, can I use your pen?

W: Sure, here you are.

2. M: Would you like something to eat?

W: Yes, a piece of cake, please.

3. M: How did you go to Dalian last summer?

W: We went there by ship.

4. W: Look at the sign: No smoking!

M: Sorry, I didn't see it.

5. W: What does your father do?

M: He is a bus driver.

6. W: Hello. Can I help you?

M: Yes, please. I need a library card.

W: OK. What's your name?

M: My name is James Turner.

W: And what class are you in?

M: I'm in Class 2A.

W: Have you got a photo?

M: Yes, here you are.

W: OK. Here's your library card.

M: Thank you.

7. W: What can I do for you?

M: Could you help me book a city tour?

W: You have come to the right place. How many days will you be visiting here?

M: I will be here for three days.

W: Have you ever visited our city before?

M: No. This is my first time to visit this city.

W: So what are you interested in, museums, buildings, or parks?

M: I really enjoy visiting museums.

W: Well, we have a city tour with visits to all the famous museums here.

M: Wonderful! It's just the tour I love.

8. M: Amy. So, how are you doing?

W: Oh, hi Stuart. School is so crazy these days, and when I'm not at school, I'm at work.

M: Hey, listen. I'm getting together with Sara, Paul and a few other friends tonight.

We're going out to see a movie. Why don't you come with us?

W: I'd love to, but I have to study for a test tomorrow.

M: Ah, come on. You're always saying that you don't have many friends.

W: But I haven't been feeling well recently.

M: Yeah, because you study too much and seldom take a rest. Come on! We'll have a great time.

W: All right, I'll go with you.

M: Great. I'll pick you up at 6:00 at your home.

9. M: Hello, Jane. You got top mark for the Chinese test again. Congratulations!

W: Thank you, Tom.

M: Learning Chinese is hard for me. How do you manage to do so well? Do you often stay up late to learn?

W: No. I have enough sleep every night.

M: So, what do you do then?

W: I keep listening to radio programs in Chinese on the Internet. They are made by native speakers.

M: I see. But they must be very fast. Can you understand them?

W: Well, I could only understand a little bit at first, but now I do understand better than before. You know, you can record programs and listen to them as many times as you like.

M: What programs do you listen to?

W: I listen to talk programs most often because they give me the best listening practice. Sometimes I also listen to news and music programs.

M: I really want to get better at Chinese. I'm going to find some programs I like too. Thank you!

W: My pleasure.

10. One of my hobbies is running, but it didn't start until I got in high school. When I was very young, I was forced to play baseball. I guess my parents wanted me to be a baseball player like every other American boy. Then when I got into high school, I realized that it just wasn't the sport for me and I didn't want to go on with it.

Then one of my friends introduced me to running, so I started with the track and field team in my first year in high school. And what really got me interested in running was how successful I was in it. I got second in my very first race. I mean if you are good at something, you will like it more. As I went on at high school, I won more races and received more prizes, and enjoyed running more and more.

When I went to college, I kept running. I ran across the country along with track and field events. I ran for the State and I made a running team for my university. I also ran local road races which are from three-mile races to ten-mile races. No matter what difficulties I had in running, I never had the idea of giving it up. I hope to go on with running after college. And I might run in longer races like marathons. Though it will be hard, I want to go as far as I can in my favorite hobby.

11. This is a fantastic summer course. It's especially for the kids who would like to spend time on computer games in an air-conditioned room. But you won't be playing computer games—this course teaches you to design them.

You will get the chance to learn from two top game designers, Mike Jones and Mel Wilson from the company Star Games. They will teach you how to use different computer programs and create games yourself.

Sounds cool, doesn't it? Kids on the course will stay at a hotel with a gym, a great dining hall and of course, computers.

We've decided to increase the length of the course this year. Last year, it was five days, and this year the course is from July 15th to July 22nd. So it's three more days than last year.

We only have places for twenty-two people. Please hurry up and book your place on the website www.teengames.net! The cost is only $300! You can pay online.

And when you do come for the course, don't forget to bring a photo of yourself and your student card.
