The hug

The phone rang. It was Lisa, my 86-year-old friend, calling. Lisa was wondering if I could take her to Flint to see the 31. I promised her I could, so on the date of the appointment (预约) I drove over to her home to pick her up.

Lisa's eyesight was 32, so she wasn't able to drive her car anymore. However, she still kept her old white Cadillac and insisted that I drive it whenever we went anywhere.

Lisa's appointment went 33 and she was really satisfied with her doctor. Then, we were on our way to get a bite to eat. It was a cloudy day without any rain or snow, but the road was still busy. The 34 was stop and go as we were in an area by the market. We were at a 35 stop when someone hit us from behind. Lisa was very angry, and she even started to say some dirty words in a low voice. I could 36 this situation could get very bad.

There really wasn't any reason why someone should rear end (追尾) the car so I wasn't sure what was going on when I pulled over. I was feeling a little 37 when I got out of the car. As I walked around the car a young woman got out of the car with anger! I could see all the other doors on her car starting to open. For some unknown 38, I walked over to this young woman and put my arms around her and gave her a hug. When I gave her a hug all the other doors shut!

Lisa got out and when she saw me hugging this girl she 39 down. I called the police and they came out and took a report. I really don't know what was actually going on that day. I do know that I just wanted to hug this girl in my mind and I believe it 40 us all from what could have been a very ugly scene.

I am a Kid Reporter, Linda Scott. I took part in the third yearly State of Science, Technology, Engineering and Math (SoSTEM) event on Wednesday January 21.

Before SoSTEM started, I interviewed Charles Bolden. He was an astronaut (宇航员) and has been to space four times. “I enjoy watching young people take their ideas and turn them into reality,” he said.

Next I spoke to Dr. Ellen Stofan. She spoke about her lifelong interest in science. “When I was in the middle school, I knew I wanted to be a scientist, but I wasn’t sure what kind,” she told me. As she grew up, she became interested in space. Her advice to young people who want to become a scientist is to “follow your dreams”.

My third interview was with Megan Smith. She talked about encouraging more girls to step into STEM fields. She told me that women have always been part of amazing scientific discoveries, even though sometimes history records have left women out.

Finally, I interviewed Kathy Pham, who is working to improve health care for more Americans through IT services. I asked her advice for young people who want a career (职业) in computer science. She advised kids to join in groups working on science and technology and to read more books on the subject.

After the interview, we had a free talk. When I asked which technology careers were going to be most in need in the next 10 years, Dr. Stofan noted that careers having something to do with energy sources (能源) are certainly going to be needed.

My biggest take-away from the event was that the future holds many wonderful chances for people interested in STEM. Just as the computer scientist Kathy Pham said: “Whatever your love is—whether it’s clothing, space or cars—today you can find a STEM field where you can do something you like.”

44. How many people did Linda interview before SoSTEM started?
A. Three. B. Four. C. Five. D. Six.
45. When Dr. Stofan was young, she wanted to become _____.
A. a reporter B. a teacher
C. a scientist D. an astronaut
46. Kathy Pham advised kids who want a career in computer science to _____.
A. talk with famous people B. write a scientific report
C. read more books on the subject D. make scientific discoveries
47. What can we learn from the passage?
A. Charles Bolden has never been to space.
B. Megan Smith encouraged boys to step into STEM fields.
C. Linda Scott attended the event on January 25.
D. There will be many chances for people interested in STEM.

C

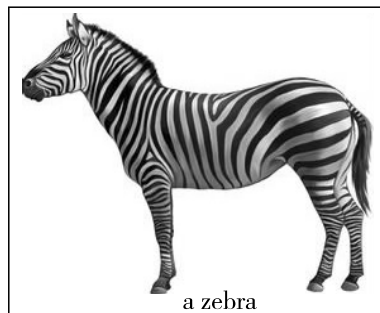

We all know that zebras have stripes (条纹). But why? It's hard to get a black-and-white answer. This is a question not just common people like us have asked, but scientists too.

Several studies have been done to find out the reason behind the stripes and many theories (理论) have been suggested. According to a recent study, the type of stripes changes depending on the temperature where zebras live. The warmer the place is, the more stripes they may have. From this study, scientists believe that stripes may help to keep a zebra cool in warmer places.

According to the cooler temperature theory, when air hits a zebra, the movements of air are stronger and faster over the black parts and slower over the white. This is because black color takes in more heat than white. So at the point where the black and white meet, there is cooling airflow. It can quickly cool a zebra's skin! In fact, scientists have noticed that heavily striped zebras have 5.4°F lower skin temperature than other animals without stripes in the same area.

Some scientists believe that stripes may be an adaptation (适应) by zebras to defend (防卫) themselves from the horseflies that follow zebras. The cooler temperature theory holds merit here too, since disease-carrying flies like horseflies like it hot. Flies also don't like landing on striped surfaces.

There also have been many other theories that have been suggested for why zebras have stripes. Some explanations are very common. One of them is that stripes may help zebras hide in grass especially from lions. Lions are color blind and even if they are not far away they may see stripes as grey and be confused by them. What's more, zebras are a large group of animals living together. When a number of zebras stand or move together, stripes may confuse lions into thinking it is one large animal.

48. Stripes are helpful for zebras to _____.

- A. stay cool
- B. move together
- C. live in cold places
- D. fight against diseases

49. How do zebras' stripes protect them from lions?

- A. Lions may be frightened away by stripes.
- B. Lions may see stripes as many animals.
- C. Stripes can prevent zebras from being seen.
- D. Stripes may make lions confused.

50. The underlined words “holds merit” in Paragraph 4 probably mean “_____”.

- A. works well
- B. sounds unreasonable
- C. causes disagreement
- D. needs supporting facts

51. What is the passage mainly about?

- A. Why lions can't eat zebras.
- B. How horseflies keep away from zebras.
- C. Why zebras have stripes.
- D. How animals adapt to nature.

D

Entertainment (娱乐) is a developing business. Its popularity continues to grow as it keeps up with technology. More people are willing to pay for entertainment with their time and money. Sometimes entertainment is a form of escapism (逃避). It takes us away from our reality and gets us into another world—not our own.

• Why do we want to escape?

Boredom or loneliness: The boredom of daily life gets to us and we feel we need some excitement and a bit change. A TV running in the background, and maybe catching our attention every now and then, keeps us company.

Fear and avoidance: We don't want to face something we fear, or can't bring ourselves to move past the fear and do something about it. We're scared to go for what we want, so we choose to turn on the TV.

Struggle: Life sometimes feels like a battle—traffic, work, taking care of ourselves and keeping up with what's going on. At the end of the day all we want to do is forget about all of it and sit mindlessly in front of TV.

Escaping has never been easier than today. We have many forms of escape. And the most favored is entertainment.

Easy to reach and affordable: You can stay at home and watch TV, or surf online all day long.

Social connection: One can line up for a new movie and socialize with other people or go to a ballgame and cheer for his or her favorite team. Entertainment has become something people have in common and can talk about.

All forms of entertainment are okay if we know what we're doing. And more importantly, we have complete control over when entertainment comes to an end.

• To face our fears and reality or to escape?

If you tried escaping before and it didn't help, it's time to deal with the problems you face.

Before watching a TV show, make sure that the important thing is taken care of. Leave your favorite show to the end of the day, after you've taken care of what matters to you. This will allow you to enjoy every minute.

There is nothing wrong with entertainment, if we don't place a higher value on it than our own reality and what matters to us.

When we entertain ourselves mindfully, we won't need to escape. We turn entertainment into the reality of the moment. And when we're done, we move on—with no regret. And that can be a lot of fun.

52. One reason why we want to escape is that _____.

- A. we are eager to get over our fear
- B. we prefer to sit mindlessly before TV
- C. people are willing to pay for their entertainment
- D. people need some excitement and change in daily life

53. Which of the following sentences might be the best to fill in the blank?

- A. Who can we socialize with?
- B. What's the best form of escapism?
- C. Why is entertainment in such great need?
- D. How does the entertainment business develop?

54. Which of the following can explain the underlined sentence?

- A. We can stop entertaining when we want to.
- B. It's more important to control our daily life.
- C. Entertainment leads to the loss of self-control.
- D. We need to learn about all forms of entertainment.

55. The writer may agree that _____.

- A. escape from life is more difficult than ever
- B. entertainment is the best way for us to enjoy life
- C. the popularity of entertainment depends on technology
- D. we can truly entertain ourselves with real matters done

Following Their Dreams

Florence lived in the countryside of Kenya (肯尼亚) in Africa. When she was 12, she wanted nothing more than to finish school. But for many girls like her, school is not a choice. 56. Families will probably spend money educating boys. Many girls are forced to marry.

57. It was Beads for Education, started by Lisa Stevens, that helped realize her dream. Beads has provided many girls with the best education possible. Florence was the first of 320 Kenyan girls in third grade.

58. During her visit, she heard that many women made and sold baskets. They used the money to send their daughters to school. Two years later, she started to help sell the Kenyan crafts (工艺品) in the U. S. In 1998, Stevens began helping girls continue their education.

59. In January, 2015, she opened the fourth one. "I want to provide the girls with the best education possible and prepare them for college and beyond," Stevens said.

The new high school is named Tembea, which means "to walk". Florence is walking toward a bright future. 60. "Florence is the first in her family to finish high school and college," says Stevens. "She is an example for all girls in Kenya."

- A. School costs money
- B. In 1991 Stevens first visited Kenya
- C. After that, she helped build three schools
- D. She left college in 2010 and is now a teacher
- E. But Florence was able to continue her schooling

八、阅读短文,根据短文内容回答问题。(共10分,每小题2分)

Our views towards life change over the time. When I was around five years old, I was in a car accident. At that time, I did not realize the seriousness of it and how lucky I was to still be alive. As I look back to think what happened on that night, I now realize how lucky my family members and I were to not have gotten serious injuries.

The day of the accident started out great. My brother, Troy, and I had spent the night before at JoAnn's house, with Heather, and JoAnn's husband Gary. The next day we spent playing inside the house, because it was cold, windy and rainy outside. At night, JoAnn told us we were going out and that where we were going was a surprise. The five of us climbed into an old car, and we set off for our surprise. It was still cold, windy, and raining cats and dogs outside when we left. Troy, Heather and I sat in the backseat together happily. The next thing I knew was that everything was chaos (混乱)! The road was so slick (滑的) that the car lost control. Glass was flying everywhere, and it sounded like there was noise all around us. Then it was totally quiet, except for the sound of the rain and wind. Troy, Heather and I were all lying on top of one another. The three of us were crying, not knowing what had happened. JoAnn and Gary were trying to calm (使平静) us down and kept asking us if we were all right. Luckily, none of us was injured, just a few cuts. After that I only remember sitting there in the cold, dark night waiting for Gary to get back with people to help us. We never got to the surprise that night. But at least we were able to go home in one piece.

After my brother and I got home that night, I remember my parents let us stay up as long as we wanted to. I guess my parents were realizing just how close they came to losing us that night. As I think of the tragedy (悲剧) that could have happened on that night, I realize how precious (宝贵) life is. I treasure my family and friends, and hope that we will share a loving, caring, and rewarding lifetime together. Things seldom go the way I plan them to, but I take a deep breath, try to laugh, and make the best of it.

61. Did the accident happen at night?
62. What was the weather like when the accident happened?
63. How did the accident happen?
64. What was the writer doing when Gary asked for help?
65. What is the passage mainly about?

One possible version:

Hi! Tom,

Nice to hear from you. I want to tell you about a good habit I have started. I enjoy reading English novels for half an hour every day. I used to have difficulties in learning English. My teacher suggested reading English novels. Amazingly, it worked!

To develop this habit, I often took a book with me so that I could read at any time. Also, I often wrote down new words I saw. Little by little, reading became part of my life. I enjoyed it.

I really benefit a lot from my reading habit. Reading makes me a wise man as well as helping me with my English studies. I am sure reading English novels will become my lifelong activity.

*Yours,
Li Hua*

文段表达评分标准

第一档:(15—13 分)

完全符合题目要求,表达思想清楚,内容丰富。使用多种语法结构和丰富的词汇,语言通顺,语意连贯,具有逻辑性。允许个别语言错误。

第二档:(12—9 分)

符合题目要求,表达思想基本清楚,内容完整。语法结构和词汇基本满足文章需要。语言基本通顺,语意基本连贯。有少量语言错误,但不影响整体理解。

第三档:(8—5 分)

部分内容符合题目要求,表达思想不清楚,内容不完整。语法结构和词汇错误较多,语言不通顺,影响整体理解。

第四档:(4—0 分)

与题目有关的内容不多,不能表达出自己的思想。只是简单拼凑提示内容,所写内容难以理解。

听力录音稿

Text 1:

M: What does your uncle do?

W: He's a cook.

Text 2:

W: Can you please turn down the TV?

M: I'm sorry. I didn't realize it was so loud.

Text 3:

M: Excuse me, how much is the watch?

W: $99.

Text 4:

W: What do you think of the concert?

M: Oh, it's nice.

Text 5:

W: You can't swim here! The sign says "No swimming".

M: Oh, dear! Thanks for telling me.

Text 6:

W: What's the matter with you?

M: I've got a fever and I cough a lot.

W: How did that happen?

M: It was raining yesterday afternoon, I didn't take an umbrella with me, so I got wet.

W: Nothing serious, just a cold. Take this medicine three times a day and have a good rest.

Text 7:

M: Are you going to Helen's birthday party on Friday evening?

W: I wouldn't miss it for the world! It's sure to be fun. She's invited a lot of friends.

M: Are you taking anything?

W: I'll take a bottle of wine.

M: That's a good idea. She has bought plenty of food and drinks. It's going to be a noisy party. I hope her neighbors don't mind too much.

Text 8:

W: What a wonderful dinner!

M: Thank you. I'm glad that you enjoyed it.

W: The dishes you prepared were really tasty. Have you taken cooking lessons?

M: No. My mother was a good cook in one of the biggest restaurants in the city. I learnt cooking from her.

W: Does your father cook too?

M: Yes. My mother cooked almost all the time during working hours in the restaurant. When she came home after work, she really didn't want to cook. So it was my father who usually cooked at home.

W: I'd love to be able to cook, but I don't know how. You know, my husband is very busy with his work, so he usually orders take-out to save time, but I've gotten bored with the food.

M: I can teach you how to cook some simple dishes if you like.

W: That would be great.

Text 9:

M: This is beautiful! What is it? Why do you put it on the window?

W: This is a paper cut. According to Chinese traditional custom, we like decorating our homes with paper cuts on Spring Festival.

M: Oh. I see. Where did you buy it? I want one too.

W: An old lady living in the neighborhood gave it to me. She is said to be a master of paper cutting. I can ask for some more for you if you like.

M: Thank you! That is great. But, would it be too much trouble? I mean, it must take a lot of time and energy.

W: It depends. Some kinds of paper cuttings do take a lot of time and energy, while some are easy to make. Paper cuts like this one are easy. With paper and scissors, the lady can make one in five minutes.

M: Amazing! How about those difficult ones?

W: Sometimes you have to draw the picture first. Sorry I'm not that clear about all the steps.

M: That's OK. Actually what I care about is when you can give me the paper cut you have promised.

Text 10:

Hi, Raman. It's Christine. I'm afraid I won't be in today. My son isn't feeling well. He has a bad cough and he's off school. So I've got to take my son to the doctor. But do you remember the training next week? You know, the one about the new computer system? We have planned it for a long time. I've organized the trainer so there's no need to phone him. I've also booked the room on the third floor. But there are a few other things that need doing. I need you to prepare some notebooks and pens for people to take notes. There will be much to remember. And you'll need to sort out lunch for about ten people. Talk to Alison, my secretary. She knows some good restaurants we can order from. She has the telephone numbers. You can ask her to help you with it. You can also order lunch from a coffee house if you like. Really sorry to leave all these things for you on a phone message. I might call you back this afternoon and see how you're doing. If you have any problem, call me at any time. Bye for now.

Text 11:

M: Good afternoon. Hardson Restaurant. Can I help you?

W: Good afternoon. I'd like to book a table, please.

M: Certainly madam. Can I have your name, please?

W: Kate Smith. K-A-T-E, S-M-I-T-H.

M: And your phone number please, Mrs. Smith?

W: My number is 5912067.

M: And how many people will be with you?

W: There will be ten people in all.

M: OK, and would you like a table by the window?

W: Yes, please.

M: And would you like some wine with your meal?

W: Yes, let me see now. White wine is my favorite and I know most people like red wine. Put me down for two bottles of red wine.

M: OK. And when would you like the table for?

W: Friday, please. About 7:00 pm.

M: OK, at 7:00 on Friday evening.

W: Yes. Thank you very much.

M: It is my pleasure. See you then.
