Travel Far, but Think Local

Author Elizabeth Becker says we have a responsibility to respect the places we visit. Some basic rules still hold, such as not traveling at busy times and taking fewer trips but making them longer. The best and easiest way to be a responsible traveler is to use common sense and go local.

Respect traditions. Read about the culture and traditions of the places you visit. Understand the local culture and customs to avoid making any mistakes or upsetting the local people. For example, dress properly when you visit temples and don't eat or talk loudly in religious (宗教的) sites. It's also important to respect the local environment. If you visit a beach, leave seashells where you find them and try not to catch fish while swimming.

Learn the languages. Nobody expects you to become fluent, but try not to learn some basic phrases such as "please" and "thank you". You'll be amazed at how much nicer and more helpful people will be if they know you're making an effort to get involved with their culture.

Spend local. Stay away from international hotels and restaurants run by foreigners. By using local guides, buying local products and staying in family run hotels, you're not only giving back to the community, but you also get a real sense of the country you're staying in and the people who live there.

Bargain fairly. Sometimes goods at a local market can seem overpriced. Nobody likes to be cheated and it may be fun to bargain (讨价还价), but remember that for the local people bargaining it may not be a game. For some of them, their business is their only source of income. So try not to be too rude when bargaining.

Don't litter. In some countries, getting rid of waste is a big problem, so don't throw rubbish on the ground. Doing so is harmful to the environment and unpleasant for others. Hold on to your rubbish until you find a bin.

Save water. Even in some of the most developed countries, water shortages are a reality. Tourists who take 10-minute showers and leave the taps running aren't making things any better.

(1) From the passage, to understand the local culture better, we should _____.

- A. respect traditions B. bargain fairly C. save water D. not litter

答案 A

解析 细节题。根据文章中第二段 " Understand the local culture and customs to avoid making any mistakes or upsetting the local people." 此外, 所在段落的小标题是 "Respect traditions." 所以答案为A。

(2) To help the local people, we'd better _____.

- A. spend in international hotels and restaurants B. have a bargaining game with local people
C. keep the rubbish and throw it in the bin D. have some local food in religious sites

答案 D

解析 细节题。根据文章第四段 By using local guides, buying local products and staying in family run hotels 可知答案为D。

(3) What's the purpose of the passage?

- A. To advise us to be polite to the local people. B. To introduce the way to learn the language.
C. To tell us how to be a responsible traveler. D. To help the people in your travel place.

Go to your local public library, and you will find an unusual activity is appearing more and more: Practicing reading with trained dogs. How would you feel about taking time once a week to read aloud to a dog?

Each dog in a reading program experiences a special training. The trainers also receive training. The trainers also receive training, they learn how to interact (互动) with the student and the dogs. Each program has high standards. There have been many studies of the interactions between humans and dogs that show dogs lower people's blood pressure and heart rate. People become more relaxed and calm and will completely forget what they are scared of when they have a dog nearby.

Unlike at school, where students sit at desks or tables, students and dogs sit together on special reading mats. Some students lie next to the dogs. Each student reads to one dog, so there is a quiet din of voices in the room. The dog has been taught a command to pay attention to the reader. So when the trainer says something to the dog, it focuses on the student at once. But sometimes, the student reads the dogs to sleep!

The dog's trainer is also present. He or she watches the dog carefully to make sure the dog behaves. Sometimes, the trainer gives the dog a break when the dog becomes restless. While the trainer doesn't help with the reading, the trainer talks to the student about the dog and explains how to take care of pets and how to be safe around animals.

Students who read to dogs show the benefits of the interaction. They are calmer and can avoid worrying about getting all the words correct. The dog just wants to hear the story. As students learn more about the dogs they read to, they also learn they have gained a new friend.

Not only do students change their reading habits with the dogs during the program, but they also change their school habits. Their reading skills increase by twelve to twenty percent. They start raising their hands and answering questions more often. They pay more attention in class. Some students start arriving at school earlier and are absent less often.

Dogs are not just for playing fetch with any more. Now they can help people become better readers. Next time you visit your local library, be on the lookout for four-legged creatures (生物) who want to hear a good story.

(1) The underlined words "command" in Paragraph 3 probably means "_____".

- A. lesson B. order C. Language D. rule

答案 B

解析 根据文章中猜词后面" So when the trainer says something to the dog,it focus on the student at once.But sometimes,the student read the dogs to sleep! "所以答案为B。

(2) From the passage,we can learn that this activity can _____.

- A. help students be more helpful and clever B. help increase reading speed by 8 percent
C. Make the trained dogs fall asleep quickly D. Make students be more active in school

答案 D

解析 根据文章中倒数第二段" Not only do students change their reading habits with the dogs during the program, but they also change their school habits.Their reading skills increase by twelve to twenty percent.They start raising their hands and answering questions more often.They pay more attention in class.Some students start arriving at school earlier and are absent less often. "所以答案为D。

(3) The writer wants to tell us that _____.

- A. The student can benefit from reading with dogs
B. The dogs can be trained to understand the story
C. The students can be taught to train dogs well
D. The trainers help students to read correctly

答案 A

解析 根据文章最后一段" Dogs are not just for playing fetch with any more.Now they can help people become better readers. "所以答案为A。

(4) What is probably the best title for this passage?

- A. Why do students need dogs? B. Where can students read books?
C. Who can help students read books? D. How do students change the habit?

答案 C

解析 结合全文可知，讲述狗与孩子阅读方面之间的联系，故选C。

It's about Time

Do you know what time it is? If you do, you probably are at a clock or watch.

Long ago, people didn't have clocks or watches like you do. When the sun rose, they got up and when the sun went down, they went to bed. They told time by the position of the sun in the sky.

People discovered that they could use a stick and the sun to tell time. This was called a shadow clock. They put a stick in the ground, pointing straight up. The direction of the stick's shadow and how long or short it was told them the time.

A better kind of shadow clock was called a sundial (日晷). Sundial had a pointer and a base. The pointer cast a shadow on marks around the base. People could tell time by reading the marks.

But shadow clocks were not good for telling time on cloudy days or at night.

Once kind of clock that didn't need the sun was a water clock. A water clock was container with a tiny hole in the bottom. Water would steadily drop out of the hole. Marks on the inside of the container showed the time. It took one hour for the water to go down one mark.

Another kind of clock that didn't need the sun was a candle clock. You would know the time by how much of the candle had melted (融化). The candle had marks down its side to show the hours.

Sometimes people used candle clocks as alarm clocks. They put a nail (钉子) in the candle at the time they wanted to wake up, hanging a shoe on the nail. When the candle melted down, the nail fell out and the shoe hit the floor with a BANG!

Now there are all kinds of timepieces, from tall grandfather clocks to watches we wear on our wrists. Most clocks run on electricity from batteries.

There are many more types of clocks, too. Clocks hang in and on buildings. Clocks are everywhere!
