A

In Chinese culture, people believe some numbers are lucky or unlucky. This is to see what Chinese character the number sounds like. For example, the Chinese word for the number 8 sounds like the word for "making a fortune". So, people think it is a very lucky number. Some people spend a lot of money to have 8s in their phone numbers. The opening time of the Beijing Olympics began at 8:08 p.m. on August 8, 2008.

The number 9 is also a lucky number. It is something to do with the emperors of China. There were nine dragons on emperors' robes(龙袍). Today, 9 often stands for "long lasting". That's why close friends always use 99 or 999 to describe their friendship.

So what's a "bad luck" number in China? It might be 4. Many Chinese people see 4 as a "bad luck" number, because it sounds like the Chinese character for "death".

Because of this, many buildings don't have the fourth floor, and just call it the fifth floor. In Hong Kong, some buildings even don't have all floors numbered with 4, such as 4, 14, 24, 34 and all 40-49 floors. Some buildings also don't have the 13th floor as 13 is an unlucky number in the West. Now a question for you: How many floors are actually there if a building's highest floor is numbered 50 in HongKong?

46. What makes Chinese people believe a number is lucky or unlucky?

A. The shape of the number

B. The sound of the number in Chinese

C. The history of the number

D. The sound of the number in English

47. Chinese people like the number 8, because it means "_____".

A. living a long life

B. becoming beautiful

C. making lots of money

D. living a happy life

48. What does this story mainly talk about?

A. Lucky or unlucky numbers in Western culture

B. Meanings of different lucky numbers

C. Meanings of different unlucky numbers

D. Lucky or unlucky numbers in Chinese culture

49. In Hong Kong, how many floors are there if a building's highest floor is numbered 50?

A. 36

B. 32

C. 30

D. 34

維基百科
自由的百科全書

Wiki is the Hawaiian(夏威夷语) word for "quick". Today, it is a very popular word among Internet users. What does it mean? Wiki is a website where everyone can create and change its pages. The most famous wiki is Wikipedia, an online encyclopedia that offers millions of articles. But there are lots of other wikis such as Wikihow, Wikinews and Wikidictionary. They all have one thing in common. They are created and managed by a wiki community.

A wiki community is made up of the millions of people who visit a wiki site. Many of the visitors are readers looking for information. Some visitors are _____ who create articles for the site. Other visitors act as editors (編輯) who read the articles and check them for mistakes. Wiki are simple to create and use, and they are becoming more and more popular.

But is wiki information reliable? If anyone can add, delete or change information, can the information be trusted? This depends on the wiki community. The community usually tries to make sure that the information on a topic is correct. If someone in the community sees an article with incorrect information, that person can edit or change it.

On a big wiki like Wikipedia, thousands of pages change every day. At certain times of the day there can be 50 or more pages changing every minute! Sometimes the changes may be as simple as spelling mistakes. Other times they are changes, additions or deletions to the content(内容).

A wiki gives the community a way to get information together and change it as things change. Wikis are greatly changing the way we get information. Do you want to find an interesting quote(语录) to use in a writing project or report? Go to Wikiquote. Do you want to learn the most recent information about a place you're planning to visit? Try Wikitravel.

50. What do wikis have in common?

What is the hottest English word these years? "Selfie" may be one of them. It was even named Word of the Year by Oxford Dictionaries in 2013. The word was first used in an Australian online forum in 2002. Now, almost everybody knows it.

Selfie is a photo that one takes of oneself. People usually take selfies with a smart phone and send them to a social media website. Nowadays, more and more people are taking selfies. From your best friend to your favorite pop star, selfies are taking over Renren and Sina Weibo.

What makes people love selfies? Selfies can help to remember what's going on in their personal life. "Almost every day, I take a photo of myself at school, and save it in my Qzone. These photos record my happy and sad moments," said Huang Xu, 16, from Hunan. Another usual reason for taking a selfie is to share online. They hope to make friends and share their feelings with others. "During summer vacation, my classmates and I shared many selfies online. Through these photos, we got to know each other's holidays and feelings," said Wang Lin, 15, from Henan. "I'm too shy to ask someone to take pictures of me, but it's easier to do it by myself."

Although taking selfies is popular among young people around the world, they should be careful at the places where they take selfies. People are warned not to take light-hearted selfies in serious places, such as in some traffic accidents. In order to protect art works, selfie is banned in some museums and galleries, too.

54. The word "selfie" has a history of about _____.

A. 4 years

B. 13 years

☒ C. 15 years

D. 20 years

The Third China Electronic Information Expo was held at the Shenzhen Convention and Exhibition Centre (会展中心) from 9 April to 11 April. It attracted more than 1,600 companies to display their products. There were more new inventions on show this year. Here are some of them.

A smart mirror can connect to the Internet. You can get the latest news about the fashion world when you touch the mirror gently with your finger. And it can help you make good choices about the types and styles of clothes that best suit you. You can also send messages on the mirror.

In the past, home robots could only do simple work like cleaning the floor or washing dishes. But a newly-made home robot can not only cook meals and serve food, but also play some musical instruments when you want to have some fun.

Smart watches are made for kids. Kids can use them to make telephone calls and even play games. They really like smart watches. Their parents like them as well because they can know their kids' locations through the signals sent by the smart watches. Besides, kids can use them as common watches to read the time.

One of the products made by DJI is a drone—a plane that can fly without a pilot. This kind of drone is used in many fields. Some drones have already been used at tourist attractions like Dongchong, Xichong, Yangmeikeng and Dapeng Geological Park in Nan'ao. The drones allow the police to monitor and control the traffic flow during rush hours.

Thanks to the development of science and technology, our life is full of miracles. New inventions make our life smarter and more convenient.

58. How many days did the Third China Electronic Information Expo last?

A. One day.

B. Two days.

C. Three days.

D. Four days.

59. Which new invention can provide you with the latest fashion news?

A few years after I was born, a stranger appeared in our small town. Dad liked this attractive newcomer very much and soon invited him to live with our family. The stranger was quickly accepted and was around from then on.

As I grew up, I never questioned his place in my family. In my young mind, he had a special position. Mom taught me how to tell good from bad, and Dad taught me to follow orders. But the stranger was our storyteller. He would keep us spellbound for hours with adventures, mysteries and comedies (喜剧). If I wanted to know anything about history or science, he always knew the answers. He knew about the past, understood the present and even seemed to be able to know what would happen in the future! With his help, my family even watched a national ball game for the first time.

Both my brothers and I enjoyed sitting around the stranger. He made us laugh, he made us cry, and he never stopped talking. Dad didn't seem to mind. However, Mom thought he was too talkative. Sometimes she would go to the kitchen for peace.

My dad didn't allow drinking, but the stranger encouraged us to try it. He also made us feel that smoking looked cool and manly. He talked freely (much too freely!)

Fifty years has passed since the stranger moved in and now I am fifty-four. I now know that my early childhood was strongly influenced by the stranger. Many times, he challenged the values of my parents, yet nobody stopped him or asked him to leave. What is his name? We just call him---"TV". He has a younger sister now. We call her "computer".

62. When the stranger came to live with our family, he was _____.
A. ignored by the children B. driven away for no reason
C. disliked because it was too noisy D. accepted by every family member
63. The stranger can do all the following things EXCEPT that he can _____.
A. tell us some funny stories B. reject our proposals(提议)
C. influence the children's character D. predict the future
64. The word "spellbound" in Paragraph 2 is the closest in meaning to _____.
A. hopeless B. upset C. tired D. interested
65. What is the best title of the passage?
A. A Stranger in My Childhood B. A Serious Stranger
C. The Stranger Taught Us Everything D. How TV Came into My Family
