When I was 16 years old, I made my first visit to the United States. It was not the first time I had been 51. Like most English children, I learn French at school and I had been to France, so I was used to speaking a foreign language to people who did not understand 52. But when I went to America I was looking forward to 53 a nice and easy holiday without any 54 problems.

How wrong I was! The misunderstanding began at the 55. I was looking for a 56 telephone to give my American friend Danny a ring and tell her that I had arrived. An old man saw me looking lost and asked if he could help me.

"Yes," I said. "I want to give my friend a ring."

He asked, "Are you getting 57? But aren't you a bit 58?"

"Who is talking about marriage?" I replied. "I just want to give my friend a ring to tell her I've arrived. Can you tell me where there's a phone box?"

"Oh," he said, "there's a phone downstairs."

When at last we did meet up, Danny explained the misunderstandings to me. "Don't worry," she said to me, "I had so many 59 at first. Because there are lots of words which the Americans use 60 in meaning from us Britain. You'll soon get used to all the funny things they say. Most of the time British and American people understand each other.

I am not a fan of flying. I prefer to take a trip by train. Here are some reasons.

Compared to airplanes, trains have more space. The seats are wider and often more comfortable. There's a lot more leg room. Trains have many seats that face each other with a table between every two of them. This is great for me, as I could easily spread out my books and do some writing. I could even put my laptop on it.

Train travel is flexible. Most trains don't require us to book a ticket ahead of time, which means we can just show up, buy a ticket and get on board. There are also a lot of choices when it comes to leaving times. Usually we can get to somewhere by taking trains that leave at different time.

We don't have to arrive hours before the train leaves. Forget waiting in long lines. At the train station, we just walk in and board our train. We don't have to walk through any body scanners (扫描器), and our luggage doesn't need to be x-rayed or searched. This means there's no need to arrive hours before the train leaves. In fact, on our first train trip, we jumped on board just as the doors were closing behind us!

When we're on a train, the only thing we need to do is sitting back and enjoying the scenery. Unlike cars, there's no traffic jam to deal with and we don't have to worry about taking a wrong turn and getting lost. On a train, we get to see the countryside we often wouldn't see if we were driving on the highway or flying thousands of miles in the air.

66. When the writer is taking a train, he or she _____.

- A. doesn't like facing others    B. doesn't like reading books
C. likes writing during the train trip    D. often watches movies with a laptop

- A. cheap                      B. exciting                      C. relaxing                      D. surprising

70. The writer writes the passage to _____.

- A. advise us not to take a flight                      B. encourage us to spend more time traveling
C. explain why he or she likes taking the train                      D. tell us about his or her traveling experiences

C

England, some food companies across the whole country have been told to carry out urgent tests on all beef products. Do you know why? That's because some food companies used horsemeat to make beef products.

There are some examples about the horsemeat matter. In January, 2013, in a number of UK supermarkets, frozen hamburgers were found to have traces of horsemeat in them. Some frozen beef products made by food company FINDUS were found to contain horsemeat. All of the beef products made by this company have been removed from sale.

The government said that there's nothing to suggest any health risk from the products. Food minister David Heath said people should not throw away frozen meat products and carry on eating meat. The government will tell people not to eat meat if the meat is not safe.

Food safety has been an important matter all over the world. More and more countries plan to take some useful measures to ensure the safety of food.

D

About ten men in every hundred suffer from color blindness in some way. Women are luckier; only about one in two hundred is affected in this matter. Perhaps, after all, it is safer to be driven by a woman!

There are different forms of color blindness. In some cases a man may not be able to see deep red. He may think that red, orange and yellow are all shadows of green. Sometimes a person cannot tell the difference between blue and green. In rare cases an unlucky man may see everything in shades

“Kids get tired,” said TPI reader Matt Johnson, a father of four. “Tired kids make parents even more tired. And tired kids and parents get hurt — physically and emotionally.” He advises that parents plan a mid-day break, perhaps a swim back at the hotel, to avoid mid-day heat and crowds. “You will see many families having a miserable time while you are refreshed and having a great evening.”
