"Where do you think you are?" he asked "The McNay Art Museum!" He smiled, 48 his head. "Sorry, the McNay is on New Braunfels Street." "What's this place?" I asked, still 49 ... "Well, it's our home." My heart joited (震颤). 1 50 the staircase and called out, "Sally! Come down immediately!"

Outside, when I told Sally what happened, she covered her 51 , laughing. She couldn't believe how long they let us look around without saying anything.

The real McNay was amazing, but we felt 52 the whole time we were there. Van Gogh, Picasso. This time, we stayed together, in case anything else 53 happened.

Thirty years later, a woman came close to me in a public place. "Excuse me, did you ever enter a house, thinking it was the McNay Museum?"

"Yes. But how do you know? We never told anyone."

"That was my home. I was a teenager sitting in the hall. Before you came over, I never realized what a 54 place I lived in. I never felt 55 before. My feelings about my home changed after that. I've always wanted to thank you."

A roofton warden is a spartment buildings, there's mother choice: rooftop gardens. A rooftop garden is just a garden that you keep on your roof. Rooftop gardens are very popular in cities. Most building roofs go to waste people don't use that space for anything. Putting a garden on Post and relaxing proper into something that's pretty and relaxing. Rooftop gardens are not a new idea. About 2,600 years ago, people in ancient Mesopotamia planted rooftop gardens. There were similar gardens in ancient Rome and ancient Egypt. These gardens had a very important purpose. Many ancient cities had walls. If an enemy army attacked the city, the people hid behind the walls. The enemy army usually tried to destroy the city's food, so the people in the city kept their gardens on top of their walls. That way, they could continue to grow food.

Today's rooftop gardens don't keep us alive, but they still have nice benefits(益处). Plants take in heat, so if there are a lot of them on a rooftop, they make the whole building cooler. As a result, people in the building use their air conditioning less, which means they use less electricity. One study said that if every roof in Tokyo had a garden, the city would save more than a million dollars a day on electricity.

Rooftop gardening is harder than regular gardening. Here are a few tips. First of all, be safe. Build a fence around your garden. You don't want the wind to blow plants off your roof! Also, remember that rooftop gardens get more sun. If you have a plant that shouldn't get too much sun, remember to put it in the shade(阴凉处) sometimes.

On March 25, 2010. Kate and David Ogg were told that their newborn baby wasn't going to make it. Their twins, a girl and a boy, weighed just over two pounds each. Doctors had tried to save the boy for 20 minutes but saw no improvement. His heartbeat was nearly gone, and he'd stopped breathing. The baby had just moments to live.

- "I saw him gasp(剛气), but the doctor said it was no use," Kate said years later "I know it sounds stupid, but if he was still gasping, that was a sign of life. I wasn't going to give up easily."
- 3 Still, the Sydney couple knew this was likely goodbye. "I wanted to meet him, and for him to know us." Kate told the reporter. "We'd accepted the fact and we were just trying to make the most of those last, precious moments."
- Kate unwrapped the boy, whom the couple had already named Jamie, from his hospital blanket and took his shirt off and joined them in bed. They wanted their son to be as warm as possible and hoped the skin-to-skin contact would improve his condition. They also talked to him.
- 5 "We were trying to let him stay," Kate said. "We explained his name and that he had a twin sister and how hard we had tried to have him."
- Then the miracle happened. Jamie gasped again and then he started breathing. Finally, he reached for his father's finger.

The couple's lost boy had made it.

- "We're the luckiest people in the world," David said.
- Nine years later, Jamie and his sister, Emily, are happy and healthy. The Oggs only recently told the kids the story of their birth. "Emily burst into tears," Kate said. "She kept hugging Jamie. This whole experience makes you cherish(珍惜) them more."
- 66. We can learn from the passage that Emily is _____ now. D. nine C. eight B. seven
