When I was a college student, I did a lot of travelling abroad. That was because a professor 41 me to do so. She said, "Now it's the time for you to travel around the world, 42 your knowledge through actual experiences and have fun!" I agreed with her.

Since I started to work for a food company, 43, I have done most of my traveling through the Internet. By using the Internet, I have seen the sights of many cities on my computer screen. As information technology 49, you might be able to do it without traveling to other places. But this also means that you will miss different 50 you can get from traveling.

Today there are people who 51 direct communication with others and spend much of their time on the Internet. It is not 52 to see a group of people talking not with each other but into their micro phones. It seems as if such people are crowded by a 53 which cannot be seen. They seem to be losing out on a good chance to meet and talk with other people. I don't think that they are taking good advantage of information technology. We should use information technology as a 54 to make our daily communication more fruitful. However, we should never let it cut 55 our time for face-to-face communication. Let's make use of information technology more wisely, and have great fun in experiencing the actual world.

Mark and his brother Jason both were looking at the shining new computer excitedly. Jason decided not to go against his father's wishes but Mark was more adventurous than his brother. He loved experimenting and his dream was to become a scientist like his father.

"Dad will be really mad if he finds out you've been playing with his new computer," Jason said. "He told us not to touch it."

"He won't find out," Mark said. "I'll just have a quick look and shut it down."

Mark had been punished before for touching his father's computer. But his curiosity was difficult to control and this new computer really attracted him.

It was a strange-looking machine — one his dad had brought home from the lab where he worked. “It’s an experimental model,” his father had explained, “so don’t touch it under any conditions.” But his warning only served to make Mark more curious. Without any further thought, Mark turned it on. Two big white words appeared in the center of the screen: “SPACE TRANSPORTER.”

“It’s a computer game. I knew it! Dad’s only been pretending to work. He’s really been playing games instead.” A new message appeared on the screen.

“ENTER NAMES

VOYAGE(means long journey) 1:...

VOYAGE 2...

Mark’s fingers flew across the keyboard as he typed in both of their names. Some other words appeared. The screen turned even brighter and a noise suddenly rose in volume(音量).

“I think we’d better shut it off, Mark,” he was really frightened.

Suddenly a beam(光束) of white light burst out of the computer screen. Then the computer died down and the boys were no longer there. On the screen, the letters changed.

“TRASPORT(运送) SUCCESSFULLY. DESTINATION: MARS(火星). RETRIEVE DATE(检索日期): 2025.”

61. Why did Mark touch the computer against his father’s warning?

A. excited

B. scared

C. fascinated

C

I was on my school campus the other day, and there was an ice cream truck parking right in front of the main common areas of the school. I had never thought an ice cream truck would circle our campus and come for us, overgrown kids. I was intrigued and wanted to find out further information.

I was quite surprised when the man in the truck called out, “Free ice cream!”

I questioned him just to make sure of his words, saying, “I’m sorry, what did you say?”

“Free ice cream. You have your choice of there four frozen treats: the rocket pop, the chocola

Eclair, the strawberry shortcake, or the drumstick.”

After I was certain that the man was just giving away free ice cream, I talked with him for a while. He told me that his dream had always been to travel around giving away ice cream, and that's exactly what he did. And his passion was expressed through using up all his credit cards, sleeping in his truck, and living with his mother in a small flat, so he could continue to follow his dream during hard times. Now, he has sponsorships (赞助) from large companies such as Levi's to do what he loves, and he's gifted 125,000 of his truckload of ice cream treats!

The man said he wanted to encourage people to do exactly what their hearts tell them to do with their lives. I kept asking him with respect, “So your dream was just to drive around and give away ice cream? It seems like a very unusual goal.”

六、阅读理解填词 (共 10 小题, 本题共 10 分, 每小题 1 分)

先阅读短文, 再在其后空白处写出各单词的正确形式。单词的第一个字母已给出。

It's not unusual to learn and use more than one language. In many countries around the world, almost everybody speaks more than one language. For example, in some parts of the USA (like Florida), a lot of people speak Spanish as their mother tongue. Most of these people learn English as well, and a lot of English speakers learn Spanish.

But perhaps the world's best language learners are the Indians who live near the Vaupés River in South America. About 10,000 of the Vaupés River Indians live in a small area of the Amazon rainforest. In this area, there are more than 20 countries different languages. All of the Vaupés River Indians speak three languages, often more than three. This is because when a person wants to get married, he or she has to marry someone who speaks a different language. So the children always learn three languages: their mother's first language, their father's first language and a third language, the language that all the Vaupés Indians have in common. When they are older, they have to marry someone who speaks a different language, and their children have to learn at least three languages. The number is often higher, as the Vaupés people often learn more languages when they are teenagers and adults.
