四、阅读理解(共20小题,每小题2分,共40分)

Danny lived for football. He played it, watched it, talked and dreamed about it. His favourite football star was Keith Connolly—Lowgate's captain and their star striker.

One day in January, after school, Danny hurried through his homework. He wanted to watch TV. Keith Connolly was doing an interview on the local news programme.

Danny hoped that the television wouldn't go fuzzy (模糊的) or lose the sound when Keith Connolly was talking. It was an old set, and it did things like that.

It wasn't clear enough, but at last Keith Connolly's smiling face appeared on the screen.

"What I really like about playing for Lowgate, " he said, "is the fans. They're the best. They always support us. It's fantastic running towards the playground to all that cheering and chanting."

Danny wished he could be in that crowd at the Lowgate ground, but the price of a single ticket was way above anything he could afford. There was no chance of the whole family going, or even just Danny and his little brother.

"You won again on Saturday, " said the reporter. "Did the team go out to celebrate? We went for a meal together, " said Keith Connolly, "but I have to be careful about what I eat, because I want to stay fit. I love doughnuts very much ..."

Then the sound went fuzzy and Danny jumped up and thumped repeatedly the top of the set to make it come on again. He hadn't missed much. But he had missed something important.

Keith Connolly had been saying "...but I'm not allowed to eat doughnuts."

Danny hadn't heard that. All he heard was that Keith Connolly loved doughnuts. And at the end of Danny's street was a bakery. It sold the biggest and the best doughnuts!

When Danny went to bed, he lay wide-awake, making a plan.

Some animals can be trained to help humans. For example, specially trained dogs help blind people walk around the town safely. Some kinds of monkeys can be taught things too. They can learn how to help people who can't use their arms or legs. The monkeys pick up the phones when it rings, carry shopping bags and do housework.

In the wild, animals and humans are not usually friends, but there are a few interesting examples where they can work together. In Africa, the honeyguide bird works with humans to find food. The bird likes to eat grubs(蛆)—a type of insect that lives inside a beehive(蜂窝). It knows how to find beehives but it can't open them and get the grubs. People like to eat honey, but they are not very good at finding beehives, so the bird and the people help each other. The bird flies to a beehive and the people follow it. When the people open the beehive and take the honey, they give the grubs to the bird.

In Laguna in the south of Brazil, fishermen and dolphins work as a team. The ocean isn't very clean, so the fishermen can't see the fish. However, dolphins can find them easily by using sounds. When the dolphins find a large group of fish, they make a noise to tell the fishermen. Then the dolphins push the fish to the beach. The fishermen wait in the water near the beach and catch a lot of fish in their nets. The fishermen's nets make it easier for the dolphins to catch fish too. In Laguna, fishermen and dolphins have been working together for many years. The fishermen teach their children how to work with the dolphins. The dolphins must be happy to help because they teach their babies how to work with humans!

A computer program that could help catch and even translate messages from aliens in outer space has been developed by a British scientist.

If aliens are discovered one day, scientists fear their language may make it impossible to understan d them. But John Elliott of leads Metropolitan University in Britain has come up with a program that can figure out the structure of their language. He thinks that's the first step in understanding what they are saying.

Dr. Elliott's program would compare an alien language to a database (数据库) of 60 different languages in the world to look for a similar structure. He believes that even an alien language will have its own structure. "Language has to be structured in a certain way, or it will be hard to use, " he told New Scientist magazine.

Research had shown that it is possible to know if a signal carries a language rather than a picture or music. Dr. Elliott has gone a step further by finding a way to pick out what might be words and sentenced. Because languages have different word orders, Dr. Elliott has set up a library of the sentence structured of 60 human languages.

If a message is received from outer space, it could be compared against this database. Scientists would then be able to see if it's similar to any human language, or a mix of the languages.

However, Dr. Elliott also said that in order to translate what the aliens are actually saying, it may still be necessary to have a "code (密码) book".

- (1) Why did Dr. Elliott come up with the program?
  - A. To learn more about outer space.
  - B. To develop a new language.
  - C. To help translate messages from aliens.
  - D. To compare an alien language to human languages.
- (2) According to Dr. Elliott, what' the first step of understan ding an alien language?
  - A. Coming up with a program.
- B. Knowing its structure.
- C. Understan ding aliens.
- D. Discovering aliens.
- (3) What does Paragraph 4 mainly tell us?
  - A. Some necessary conditions for making the program work.
  - B. Dr. Elliott's findings about different kinds of languages.
  - C. Three importan t functions of the program.
  - D. The number of sentence structures of human languages.
- (4) How does the program work when it receivers a message from aliens?
  - A. Mix the message with 60 human languages.
  - B. Translate the message and send it to the database.
  - C. Pick out the sentence structure and translate it.
  - D. Compare the message to the database of 60 human languages.
- (5) What can we infer from the passage?
  - A. Not all languages have their own structured.
  - B. To translate alien languages, there is much work to do.
  - C. The structure of alien languages is similar to that of human languages.
  - D. Alien languages are signals carrying pictures and music.

五、阅读填空(共5小题,每小题1分,共5分)

17	Have you had a headache during a test? Have you ever been so worried about something that you have a headache or even can't sleep at night? If so, then you know what stress is.
	Stress is what you feel when you are worried about something1 you may feel angry, sad, scared or afraid—all of which can give you a stomachache or a headache.
	Some kinds of stress are good and others are bad. Good stress might happen when you are called to answer questions in class or when you have to give a speech. 3 For example, you may do a better job in your test if the stress pushes you to prepare better before the test.
	On the other hand, bad stress can happen if the stress lasts too long. You may not feel well if your parents are fighting, if a family member is sick, if you're having problems at school or if anything else makes you unhappy every day. That kind of stress isn't going to help you4
	Make sure you keep yourself in mind: sleep, exercise, leisure and food. If you get enough sleep and eat healthily, and if you exercise and leave time for fun, you'll probably feel less stressed.
	A. This kind of stress can help you to get things better done.
	B. This worry in your mind can make your body feel bad.
	C. The best way to face the stress is to have a balanced life.
	D. That kind of stress isn't going to help you, and it can actually make you sick.
	E. However, there are different kinds of stress.
