18．(10 分)I first went to Harrow in the summer term．The school had the biggest swimming pool I had ever seen．It was a good joke to come up behind a naked boy， and push him out the pool． I made quite a habit of this with boys of my own size or 1ess．

0ne day I saw a boy wrapped in a towel on the side of the poo1． He was no bigger than I was，so I thought him a fair game．Coming secretly behind，I pushed him in，holding on to his towel so that it would not get wet．I was surprised to see an angry face come out from the water， and being of great strength making its way by face strokes(猛力地划)to the shore．I fled，but didn't succeed．He overtook me，pulled me hard，and threw me into the deepest part of the poo1．I soon climbed out on the other side，and found myself surrounded by a crowd of younger boys．"Do you know what you have done？ " They said．"It's Amery：he is in Grade Six．He is champion at gym．He has won his football award．"

I was frightened and felt ashamed．How could I tell his position when he was wrapped in a bath towel and so small．He didn't seem pleased at all．so I added in a most brilliant word．"My father，who is a great man，is also small．"At this he laughed，and after some general words about my rude behavior and how I had better be careful in the future，expressed all was over．

61．The writer thought Amery "a fair game" because the boy_____．

A．1ooked like an animal

B．1oved games

C．was of similar size

D．was good at sports

62．The writer felt "ashamed" because_____．

A．He was laughed at by other boys

B．Amery turned out to be in the same grade

C．He pushed Amery hard and hurt him

D．He played a joke on an outstanding athlete

63．By saying "My father who is a great man，is also small"，the writer_____．

A．tried to please Amery

B．challenged Amery

C．wanted to make Amery afraid

D．thought his father is great

64．Which of the following is TRUE？_____

A．The writer could run faster than Amery．

B．The writer liked playing jokes on boys of all sizes．

C．Amery was a student in Grade Four．

D．Amery forgave the writer for his rude behavior．

65．The best title of the article is_____．

A． A Swimming Experience

B．A Fair Game

C． An Accident

D． Be Careful in the Future

19．(10 分)Reading Oliver James' Affluenza， I thought about what often happens at home． My 12 - year - old daughter is in tears． "I have to take a test tomorrow． I don't understand any of it， "she cries out． After shouting and shutting her door， she calms down enough to go through her notes． The following day I ask her how the test went and she just says "OK，I got a nine".

"Wow． Well done!" I say， before she finishes with "But I never get a ten!"

According to James， this obsession with getting top marks has been a bad development， which encourages people to think of education in terms of work and money． To test this， I asked my daughter why she was so worried about her tests．She looked at me as if I was thick．"Well， if I don't get good grades， I won't be able to afford nice things like a car and stuff．"

I was quite surprised， because I don't consider myself a pushy parent． But James suggests and it leaves students feeling failures even if they are very bright． He points to the Danish system(体制)of education as a better model． Creating happy citizens who have good social skills is seen as more important than high achievements at school or the needs of business．

For me， I cannot remember the last time I had to work out the area of a circle， recite a Shakespeare poem or grammar rules， yet I have lived a happy life． What I really needed to learn at school was how to make polite conversations， or how to avoid getting into debt or how to develop good personality．

This is in fact similar to what Oliver James really has in mind．And he is looking for schools where students are encouraged to find and follow their own interests， something more like Tongjon． Tongjon has been developed in some Korean private schools． It is quite different from the more rigid system of learning things by heart that is used in Korea， and indeed in many other school systems around the world．

As the Russian poet Pushkin said，" Inspiration(灵感)is needed in geometry(几何学)just as much as in poetry "，and inspiration does not come from endlessly revising for tests or getting worried about them．

66. What does the writer probably think of his/her daughter? _____

A. She sets herself a goal too high to reach.

B. She should be more polite to her parents.

C. She is hard - working but not very bright.

D. She takes her grades much too seriously.

67. What does the word "obsession"in paragraph 3 mean? _____

A. A plain and unavoidable fact.

B. A satisfied and very proud state.

C. A practical and widely - used way.

D. A fixed and often unreasonable idea.

68. What does the sentence " She looked at me as if I was thick. " mean? _____

A. The writer quite understood his/her daughter's problem.

B. The writer was sure his/her daughter could pass the test.

C. The daughter thought he/she seemed stupid enough to ask such a question.

D. The writer was satisfied with his/her daughter.

69. What can we infer from the passage? _____

A. Social skills are as important as high grades.

B. Interest in grades can shake self - confidence.

C. The writer regrets not having studied hard at school.

D. Danish educational system is for very smart students.

70. The writer wants to tell us that_____.

A. learning happily is the key to self - development.

B. top marks may be helpful to increase one's interest.

C. tests should be improved to give children inspiration.
