When I finished my work and put away my things, I hurried to drive home for my 30th birthday celebration. My husband called, he would give me a 41 this evening. Then I came up to a red light and stopped.

As I was 42, I saw a young guy standing on my left. He was pale in the face and 43 a cardboard sign with some writing on it. When you're in the heart of downtown, it's pretty 44 to see homeless people asking for money. Generally, I would 45 them, but this time when I looked over the sign, I stopped. I didn't know 46, but this sign struck me.

I can't remember what the sign said 47, but it was something like: "Need money / 48, have stomach cancer, homeless, anything helps."

The light had just turned green, and there was a line of supper rush hour traffic 49 me. I went back and forth in my mind a hundred times in that next second. "Should I do something or just 50?" The traffic moved forward, and I went with

About a block or two away, my heart had sunk simply for this guy. I felt so 51 for him. So, I decided to go back and ask him if I could buy him some food and listen to his 52.

It took me about five minutes to turn around and back on to the same 53 where I had seen him. It was just five minutes--but he had gone.

"Where did he go so fast?" I wondered. So, there was 54 left to do except going on my driving.

Back at home, I just couldn't 55 happy when I thought of the pale face. If you get an idea from inside you, act on it. Don't miss out--for yourself and for that other person.

On Thursday October 3, Adam Harper decided to stop drinking coffee. Adam is a MBA student at Harvard University. He studies long hours, gets very little sleep and as a result, he drinks a lot of coffee---anywhere from five to six cups a day. Recently, Adam felt that drinking thus much coffee was making it hard for him to sleep at all. He also began having problems with his concentration(注意力), and complained of stomachaches. Adam's doctor made this suggestions: stop drinking coffee altogether.

When Adam got up on October 3, he began his day without his morning coffee. By 11:00 a.m., Adam was in a terrible mood (情绪). He was tired and had a headache. At 11:30, he had a meeting with his student advisor. In the meeting, he found it almost impossible to continue. What was going on?

Caffeine, a chemical found in coffee, was most likely the reason for how Adam felt. Caffeine is a stimulant that boosts(增加) energy levels and improves concentration- but only for a short time. Lowering caffeine consumption(减少摄取咖啡因) often causes a drop in blood pressure and the result is a "coffee headache", People who stop drinking coffee often say they feel tired and moody, and find it hard to focus.

The good news is that these feeling usually pass after four and five days. During this time, doctors suggested taking some aspirin for the headache. So, if Adam can wait, in less than a week, he may be feeling mu

 A. to go to sleep very fast B. to work for long hours
 C. not to get ill easily D. not to depend on medicine
63. People may feel _____ when they stop drinking coffee.
 A. healthier B. uneasy C. energetic D. awoken
64. What happened to Adam on Thursday October 3?
 A. He didn't go to his study.
 B. He complained about the student advisor.
 C. He didn't drink any coffee at all.
 D. He decided to stop drinking coffee.
65. The good news shows that_____.
 A. Adam will be better if he stops drinking coffee.
 B. More and more people will give up coffee.
 C. Aspirin can stop us thinking coffee
 D. Coffee can never cause headaches.

Can you speak to dolphins? Of course you can but you won't be able to understand them! We interviewed a biologist and asked her what research on dolphin communication has shown. This is what she told us.

Just like dogs, cats and other mammals, dolphins communicate by using sound, vision (视觉), touch and taste. Each dolphin has its own signature whistle to identify itself and to call others. Dolphins don't have the ability to smell, but their hearing and eyesight are excellent.

We also asked Jane if dolphins have got their own language. She told us that they have and that dolphins started talking to each other from birth. They make different sounds, including whistles, squeaks and click. Sometimes they even sound like a heavy metal band!

We then asked Jane if any interesting experiments have been done. She told us that a very interesting experiment had been done with a mother dolphin and her two-year-old baby in an aquarium. They talked to each other over the telephone! The two dolphins were in separate tanks which were connected by a special under water system. Unfortunately the biologists couldn't understand what the dolphins were talking about because they haven't been able to decode (转换) dolphin language yet. However, it was very clear that the dolphins knew what they were talking about.

Finally we asked Jane if there was hope that we would be able to understand dolphins in the near future. She told us that she and her team have been listening to dolphins for more than 17 years, using special equipment to record and analyze their language. Unfortunately they haven't been able to decode it yet, but who knows — maybe one day we'll get a phone call from a dolphin
