A

Dear Annie,

I've just stayed in the most terrible hotel! It looked very modern but almost everything about it was bad!

When we arrived, our room wasn't ready. Since we were hungry, we thought we'd go to the restaurant while we waited for the room. But the restaurant was closed. It was only a few minutes after 1.00 p.m.. Finally, after an hour, we were taken to our room. It wasn't ready yet!

I called the manager but he was having lunch.

The beds were big and comfortable - not too hard and not too soft, but the room was a little too small for two people. Also, it was rather noisy, because the kitchen was below it. The room had a big TV but it was small so it wasn't easy to watch. There was a beautiful swimming pool behind the hotel, but there was no water in it! Can you believe that? Only one thing at the hotel wasn't bad: the shopping. I bought a postcard of the hotel so that I'll remember never to go there again!

Love,

Kelly

Before, very few foreigners visited the southern foot of Himalayas. Then, many Japanese went there. It is said that this is because of the honesty (诚实) of a small boy.

One day, some Japanese photographers asked a local boy to buy some bottles of beer, which took the boy three hours. The next day, the boy volunteered (自告奋勇) to buy for them. The photographer gave him a lot of money. But the boy did not return until the afternoon of the third day. So the photographers began to talk about it and thought they were cheated by the boy. The third night, the boy knocked the door of the photographer. The boy told them that he bought four bottles of beer at one store, and then he climbed another mountain and crossed a river to buy the other six. On the way back, three bottles of them were broken, he cried and brought the broken pieces of bottles to the photographer and returned to him the small changes.

The people there were moved. Then the story moved more people. More travelers came to the place.
