Healthy eating starts with learning new way to eat such as adding more fresh fruit and vegetables, and cutting back on foods that have lots of fat, salt and sugar. Healthy eating will help you feel your best and give you plenty of energy. It can help you deal with stress better. However, healthy eating isn't a diet. If you eat too little when you diet you may eat more after you stop dieting. Eating a healthy, balanced diet is very satisfying. And if you match that with more exercise, you may be able to have a healthier weight.

What can you do to make healthy eating a habit? First, think about your reasons for healthier eating. Do you want to improve your health? Do you want to feel better? Next, think about small changes that you can make. Then set some goals and go for them.

◆Set an easy goal you can reach, like having a piece of fruit each day.

◆Set a long-term goal too, such as having one meal not including meat or fish every week. What's more, having help from others is important. After you get more help, it'll be easier for you to make changes. Have family and friends to help you make meals and give you useful advice on healthy cooking. If you need more help, talk to your doctor or look online for groups that care about healthy eating and tell success stories.

(1) What can we learn from the underlined part in the first paragraph?

- A. Too much fat, salt and sugar are very good for our health.
- B. To keep healthy, we don't need any fat, salt and sugar.
- C. We should try to stay away from foods that have a lot of fat, salt and sugar.
- D. We should try to have foods that have a lot of fat, salt and sugar.

(2) The second paragraph is mainly about ____ .

- A. how to eat healthily
- B. how to lose weight
- C. the advantaged of healthy eating and dieting
- D. the difference between healthy eating and dieting

(3) The writer advise people to ____ .

- ①go on a diet
- ②do more exercise
- ③set some goals
- ④make big changes first

- A. ①④
- B. ①②
- C. ③④
- D. ②③

(4) What is the passage mainly about?

- A. Healthy cooking.
- B. Healthy eating.
- C. Ways to set goals.
- D. Ways to lose weight.

Imagine a vegetable garden that everyone can reach: one you don't have to bend down to weed, that can follow the sun around in a small backyard and that won't take up too much space. "Impossible!" you say-think again! A group of people living in suburban Melbourne came up with a creative way to garden in small space.

They all love growing vegetables but not everyone could do that when they just had a conventional vegetable garden. To solve the problem, they added a mobile vegetable patch (菜地) . They turned an old hospital bed into a garden on wheels. The bed can be raised and lowered so everyone, including people in wheelchairs, can enjoy working in the garden. Their local greengrocer (蔬菜水果商) provided some containers, where they planted their vegetables. This perfect garden can be easily wheeled around to follow the sun!

It is a great activity for Michele, Marianne, Shelly, Jimmy and Ashley, who have a disability and are supported in their homes by people employed by the Department of Human Services.

The garden is a joy to everyone and provided the vegetables for a lot of cheap and nutritious meals. "Our garden is coming along well, " says Michele.

"We've been eating lots of salad items—lettuce, cucumbers and spring onions. Everyone loves them. Unfortunately, the strawberries were a failure. I think it was a bit too hot in the pots for them. We have plans for a potato crop next year, grown on newspapers and covered with straw and sheep manure (肥料) . It is a very 'no-dig' way to grow them."

(1) The underlined word "conventional" in Paragraph 2 means ____ .

- A. traditional B. real C. special D. large

(2) Compared with a traditional garden, the most obvious characteristic of the new garden is that ____ .

- A. it can save energy B. it is quite cheap
C. it is environmentally friendly D. it can be easily offered

(3) Disabled people may especially love the new garden mainly because ____ .

- A. it helps them make some money B. it brings them a lot of pleasure
C. it encouraged them to help others D. it is good for their health

(4) From the passage we know that ____ .

- A. people need to get more fresh and cheap vegetables
B. it's a joy for people to be in close touch with nature
C. people want to make the best use of waste and old materials
D. all fruits can grow well in the vegetable patch

While famous foreign architects are invited to lead the designs of landmark buildings in China such as the new CCTV tower and the National Center for the Performing Arts, many excellent Chinese architects are making great efforts to take the center stage.

Their efforts have been proven fruitful. Wang she, a 49-year-old Chinese architect. Won the 2012 Pritzker Architecture Prize — which is often referred to as the Nobel Prize in architecture —on February 28. He is the first Chinese citizen to win this award.

Wang serves as head of the Architecture Department at the China Academy of Art (CAA) . His office is located at the Xiangshan campus of the university in Hangzhou. Zhejiang Province. Many buildings on the campus are his origin creations.

The style of the campus is quite different from that of most Chinese universities. Many visitors were amazed by the complex architectural space and abundant building types. The curves (曲线) of the buildings perfectly match the rise and fall of hills, forming a unique view.

wang collected more than 7 million abandoned bricks of different ages. He asked the workers to use traditional technique to make the bricks into walls, roofs and corridors. This creation attracted a lot of attention thanks to its mixture of modern and traditional Chinese elements (元素).

Wang's works show a deep understanding of modern architecture and a good knowledge of traditions. Through such a balance, he had created a new type of Chinese architecture, said Tadao Ando, the winner of the 1995 Pritzker Prize. Wang believes traditions should not be sealed in glass boxes at museums. "That is only evidence that traditions once existed, " he said.

"Many Chinese people have a misunderstanding of traditions. They think tradition means old things from the past. In fact, tradition also refers to the things that have been developing and that are still being created, " he said.

"Today many Chinese people are learning Western style and theories rather than focusing on Chinese traditions. Many people tend to talk about traditions without knowing what they really are, " said Wang.

The study of traditions should be combined with practice. Otherwise, the recreation of traditions would be artificial and empty, he said.

- (1) Wang's winning of the prize means that Chinese architects are _____.
 A. following the latest world trend B. getting international recognition
 C. working harder than ever before D. relying on foreign architects
- (2) What impressed visitors to the CAA Xiangshan campus most?
 A. Its hilly environment. B. Its large size.
 C. Its unique style. D. Its diverse functions.
- (3) What made Wang's architectural design a success?
 A. The mixture of different shapes. B. The balance of East and West.
 C. The use of popular techniques. D. The harmony of old and new.
- (4) What should we do about Chinese traditions according to Wang?
 A. Spread them to the world. B. Preserve them at museums.
 C. Teach them in universities. D. Recreate them in practice.
