七、书面表达

31 Animals are good friends to human beings, but many wild animals have already died out and hundreds of others are becoming endangered because of being killed and homeless. So it is necessary to protect wild animals. If nothing is done, we may find ourselves alone on the earth.

Why wild animals get close to extinction is as follows. To start with, people have been cutting down trees for building materials, causing some animals to lose their habitats. Besides, to make money, some people have been killing rare wild animals. They use wild animals like elephants, tigers, antelopes and bears to make handicrafts and medicine. Some wild animals are even hunted and killed to satisfy people's desire to taste new and novel flavor, such as shark fin soup and even bat soup.

In my opinion, it's time that we took immediate measures to change the situation. First, we should not cut down trees without the government's permission. Instead, we are supposed to plant more trees to protect the animals' living conditions. At the same time, more nature reserves are expected to be set up. Last but not the least, laws to protect wild animals should be made and the people who kill, sell and buy wild animals should be punished seriously.

I believe as long as we take action immediately, we will live in harmony with animals and life will become better. So let's take action!
