21 Dear everyone,

South China Tiger is a kind of tiger that lives mainly in southern China.

They have round heads, short ears, and long tails. Their skins are black and yellow. They are good at swimming. They run fast and feed on all kinds of animals. But such powerful South China Tigers are currently facing an endangered status for the following reasons. The main reason is human killing, and another is environmental pollution which has reduced their living habitats. In the face of such a situation, we must take effective measures to protect the South China Tiger. First of all, we should establish animal nature reserves to make sure that they have enough living space. Second, we must have the consciousness to protect them. Our life will be better only if we live in harmony with wild animals. Let's protect the South China Tiger together!

Yours,

Li Hua
